This is the first calendar I've been able to get in the mail for several months. My routine has been radically interrupted for a while, but it is finally getting back to normal, or rather a new normal. On Nov 1, 2003 my musical partner, Eric Baker, was in a severe car accident. He was unconscious for 9 days and in the hospital for almost 3 months.

He fought hard and was finally released from the hospital on Jan 27. He was looking forward to getting back to his music, his art, teaching his art classes at Westwood College, returning to his love of the outdoors and guiding canoe trips again this summer on the Colorado rivers. His big goal was that next year we would once again hike The Grand Canyon. However on Feb 8 he had a massive heart attack and lost his life. He would have turned 50 April 8.

This was a terrible shock because he was making such good progress. During his long struggle in the hospital and the few days he was home, he gained an even greater appreciation of life, and grew even closer to his family and many friends. I am grateful that he was able to spend his last days at home. He was very happy. I am also very grateful for the 27 wonderful years we had together making music. He was a wonderful friend and is one of the treasures of my life.

On Saturday April 3, my dear friend Louise O'Brien passed away. She would have been 74 on May 24. I met Louise when I moved to Denver in 1979. She was working at David Faretta's Global Village Coffee House, the first gig I played in Denver.

It was always a treat when she would join me on stage to sing harmonies or take my guitar and play her original tunes. Some of you know her as the writer of my demented version of Rudolph, The Red Nosed Reindeer. She loved Bob Dylan (they shared a birthday), classical music, and often requested my Tommy Medley from The Who. Louise was a great supporter of live music in Denver.

A celebration honoring Louise will be held Sunday afternoon, May 16 at Sheabeen Pub in Aurora. I hope you can join us for an afternoon of great music for a great friend. Denver has lost a very special lady.

Sunday, Sept 5 my friend Julie Rondinelli passed away after a lengthy illness. I met Julie in 1983. Not only was she a great friend, but a driving force behind not only my success, but the success of a number of working musicians in Denver.

She designed my logo and did the original layout for the song book that I pass out at my gigs. Julie spent countless, tedious hours with a typewriter and copy machine (in the days before computers) working on résumés, posters, mailing lists, etc. The results of her tireless efforts were better promotional materials and a more successful career. Her love of music brought her in contact with others like me, who have also benefited from her support. Julie designed band logos, album covers, t-shirts, banners, buttons, etc. Her ideas, combined with her talent as a graphic artist and photographer, were invaluable.

Entertainer/musician/comic Jolly Demis said, "She believed in us when we didn't know any better." Over the years, the ideas she developed for us continue to be a valuable tool for our success as musicians. Much of her work has been incorporated into my web site over 20 years later.

Julie had a son, who passed away several years ago. She is survived by a daughter, 3 grand children and 5 great-grand children.
